Call for sponsorships

The second unified Galaxy Community and Bioinformatics Open Source Conference will be held July 17-26, online and around the world. This is an opportunity to reach 300+ researchers, decision makers, support staff, and software engineers, all working in data intensive bioinformatics. Sponsorship opportunities are available at multiple levels. BCC2020 will be presented twice per day: one window anchored in the event's original Toronto time zone (BCC West), and the other starting 12 hours later on the other side of the world (BCC East). We have also lowered registration costs to reflect reduced expenses. In addition, to reach as much of the bioinformatics community as possible, we have added very low registration rates for participants from low and lower-middle income countries.

Going virtual, adding BCC East, and reducing registration rates will make this largest, most global, and most inclusive BOSC and Galaxy event to date. Sponsoring the Bioinformatics Community Conference is an excellent way to raise your organization's visibility, and will help make BCC2020 a success.

Sponsorships are available at multiple levels and offer a wide range of benefits and pricing.
